

[illegible]

Spanish – Year 1

	sound to Spanish. Like the 'ny' sound in the English word 'canyon'. J sound in hojas. Starting to learn that the 'j' in Spanish is pronounced as the English 'h' in 'hello'. Nouns & articles/determiners. We will start to notice that in Spanish there is often an article/determiner before a noun when there is not one in English. One word in English can be two words in Spanish! For example, spring is la primavera.	sound to Spanish. Like the 'ny' sound in the English word 'canyon'. J sound in hojas. Starting to learn that the 'j' in Spanish is pronounced as the English 'h' in 'hello'. Nouns & articles/determiners. We will start to notice that in Spanish there is often an article/determiner before a noun when there is not one in English. One word in English can be two words in Spanish! For example, spring is la primavera.	sound to Spanish. Like the 'ny' sound in the English word 'canyon'. J sound in hojas. Starting to learn that the 'j' in Spanish is pronounced as the English 'h' in 'hello'. Nouns & articles/determiners. We will start to notice that in Spanish there is often an article/determiner before a noun when there is not one in English. One word in English can be two words in Spanish! For example, spring is la primavera.	sound to Spanish. Like the 'ny' sound in the English word 'canyon'. J sound in hojas. Starting to learn that the 'j' in Spanish is pronounced as the English 'h' in 'hello'. Nouns & articles/determiners. We will start to notice that in Spanish there is often an article/determiner before a noun when there is not one in English. One word in English can be two words in Spanish! For example, spring is la primavera.	sound to Spanish. Like the 'ny' sound in the English word 'canyon'. J sound in hojas. Starting to learn that the 'j' in Spanish is pronounced as the English 'h' in 'hello'. Nouns & articles/determiners. We will start to notice that in Spanish there is often an article/determiner before a noun when there is not one in English. One word in English can be two words in Spanish! For example, spring is la primavera.	sound to Spanish. Like the 'ny' sound in the English word 'canyon'. J sound in hojas. Starting to learn that the 'j' in Spanish is pronounced as the English 'h' in 'hello'. Nouns & articles/determiners. We will start to notice that in Spanish there is often an article/determiner before a noun when there is not one in English. One word in English can be two words in Spanish! For example, spring is la primavera.
Recorded learning 	Writing: Split the page into 4 sections. Draw a tree depicting the seasons and label with Spanish name.	Speaking: Learn and perform the seasons song from Language Angels – photo in book.
Future learning 						